Coast Guardsmen Save 57 On Two Broken Tankers; 6 Dead, 8 Missing

CHATHAM, Mass. — (AP) — Heroic Coast Guardsmen steamed to port today with 25 survivors from the broken tanker Fort Mercer.

Thirteen other seamen passed up rescue last night, electing, instead, to stick with the Fort Mercer's stern as volunteers in a salvage attempt.

Efforts will be made to tow that half of the ship to port.

The Fort Mercer was one of two 10,000-ton tankers which broke in halves about the same time in a terrific northwest storm off this little fishing port Monday.

Halves Go Aground

The other tanker was the Pendleton. Both her halves have gone aground.

The latest batch of survivors brought to 57 the number rescued from the four drifting sections.

Six are listed as dead and eight are missing and presumed dead.

Two of the four taken off the bow were hauled aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Yakutat from life rafts floated by the tossing derelict. The other two were saved by the breeches buoy method.

The Cutter Acushnet and the Cutter Eastwind teamed up to rescue the 21 men from the stern half of the Fort Mercer.

The two rescue vessels floated life rafts to the Fort Mercer—through 15 to 25 foot waves — and then pulled the men to the Eastwind.

When that operation proved "too slow," the Acushnet made two dangerous passes alongside the Fort Mercer. She took five men off the stricken craft on the first pass and 13 on the second pass.

Tugs Seek Salvage

The rescue operation was carried on 53 miles south southeast of Nantucket. The bow of the Fort Mercer capsized after the men were rescued from it some 30 miles from the stern.

Five men lost their lives from the forward section of the Fort Mercer in an earlier rescue attempt. The sixth was crushed between a rescue craft and the stern end of the Pendleton.

The eight seamen presumed dead were washed overboard from the bow of the Pendleton.

Meanwhile, three commercial tugs sped to the scene in hope of salvaging the wreck of the Mercer.

Movie Star Liz Will Wed Briton

BY ERNEST AGNEW

LONDON—(AP)—Hollywood film star Elizabeth Taylor scurried around Mayfair's shops today looking for a wedding present for a man "who's got everything."

The man is Michael Wilding, 39-year-old British actor, and 19-year-old Liz is scheduled to marry him Friday at Caxton hall registry office in Westminster.

The ceremony will be brief. Both Liz and her intended said they hoped there would be little fuss and that there would be only 12 or 15 guests.

It will be the second wedding for each. She is divorced from hotel heir Nicky Hilton, Wilding from British actress Kay Young. This marriage, the couple agreed, is to stick. And Liz said they both want children.

The young Hollywood beauty arrived by plane from New York last night. Wilding and about 200 fans met her in the London airport reception room. During the flight over she told a reporter she wanted to get married very very quickly—"happiness is a fragile thing and we have so little time for it."

Handwriting On Wall For Truman Seen In Queens GOP Victory

(By The Associated Press)

Republican leaders today hailed the election of Robert Tripp Ross as Congressman in New York's Queens county as "the handwriting on the wall for the Truman administration."

This New York City district has chosen Democrats in three out of five elections in its eight-year history.

House Margin Cut

Ross, conducting his fourth campaign for the seat, ran on a strictly anti-Truman platform which he expounded to voters by direct mail, telephone and door-to-door calls. He had served in Congress from 1946 to 1948.

Loss of this first Congressional race in a presidential election year cut the Democrats' margin in the House to 28 seats. The special election was held to fill the seat vacated by Democrat T. Vincent Quinn, who resigned to become Queens district attorney.

Ross, only entry in the four-way race to take a district stand on the Truman issue, polled 17,300 votes to 11,442 for his Democratic opponent, city councilman Hugh Quinn. Liberal Party candidate George F. Cranmore got 2,646 votes and the American Labor Party-Independent candidate, Mrs. Thelma Bearman, 1,221.

Omen For November

This was the lightest vote ever polled in the district—32,609 votes of the 106,528 eligible voters.

In Washington, Rep. Leonard W. Hall of New York, chairman of the Republican Congressional committee, called Ross' victory "the handwriting on the wall for the Truman administration."

He said, "there can be no doubt that the Republican national committee said "this significant Republican victory in a Democratic stronghold * * * reflects the determination of voters everywhere to replace Trumanism with sound, honest government, competent to achieve peace and preserve our freedom."

Denver Garage Keeps OPA Prices, Says It's Not Enough Money

DENVER — (AP)—A garage operator is charging the same prices he charged seven years ago and he said today it "just isn't enough money, I can tell you that."

Apparently Delbert Bohlander, 52, who has a garage at Pritchett, a southeastern Colorado hamlet, hadn't heard of the death of the OPA in 1946 or the establishment of the Office of Price Stabilization.

The story came to light when Bohlander wrote a letter to OPS headquarters here. He said he saw the agency mentioned in a newspaper and wondered what it meant.

The garage man says he charges $35 "plus gaskets" to overhaul a six-cylinder automobile engine. The same job in Denver runs as high as $90, plus the cost of gaskets and other materials.

Country Judge Whips Gov. Long By A Landslide

NEW ORLEANS — (AP)—Robert F. Kennon, a 49-year-old country judge, overthrew the political might of Gov. Earl K. Long in a landslide victory for governor of Louisiana.

Kennon handed the Long forces their worst defeat since the late Huey P. (Kingfish) Long was beaten for governor in his first attempt in 1924.

Kennon's victory in yesterday's Democratic primary, equivalent to election, was over former state District Judge Carlos G. Spaht (pronounced Spate) of Baton Rouge, whom Gov. Long handpicked to be his successor. The state constitution bars the governor from succeeding himself. His four-year term expires in May.

During his campaign Kennon spoke out strongly against renomination of President Truman. In an early morning interview today Kennon said, "I am going to make haste slowly on national affairs. I think the policy of the Democratic party in Louisiana should be to watch developments and move along with developments in other states."

Louisiana, along with Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina, cast their electoral votes in 1948 for the States' Rights ticket against Mr. Truman.

The prime issue in the gubernatorial campaign was pro-Long vs. anti-Long, an issue dating back a quarter of a century to the days of the Louisiana Kingfish.

Russia Neutral, Reds Insisting

By GEORGE A. MCARTHUR

MUNSAN, Korea— (AP) —Communist insistence that Russia be invited as a neutral nation to help supervise a Korean truce stalled armistice talks today.

The Allies offered "in the interest of progress" to pare their troop rotation figure from 40,000 monthly to 35,000. But the Reds would not even talk about it.

Red negotiators were insistent that the Soviet Union be the third neutral nation nominated by the Communists. The United Nations Command already has approved Poland and Czechoslovakia.

U. N. negotiators refused to indulge in a debate on the neutrality of Russia in the Korean conflict despite repeated Red hints they would like such an argument.

The Allies said simply that Russia, as sponsor of Red Korea and Communist China, was "not acceptable" as a neutral supervisor.

Communist staff officers insisted the nomination was "fully consistent with the agreed principles of the nomination of neutral nations" and did not need Allied approval.

Taft Thinks Ike Should Get In Wisconsin Race

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Senator Taft indirectly challenged Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today to come out as an active candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Commenting that he "welcomes" the entry of Gov. Earl Warren of California into the April 1 Wisconsin primary, Taft told this reporter:

"My only regret is that General Eisenhower hasn't decided to come into that race."

Wisconsin law requires a candidate's consent for entry of a slate of delegates in his behalf. Eisenhower has said he is available for the nomination but would not participate in pre-convention activities.

Warren's entry was generally regarded as being likely to help Taft in a critical state, since the California governor is credited with a strong following among the same Republicans who also like former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

Stassen has been entered in Wisconsin and is already campaigning there. Politicians thought Warren and Stassen might split the vote that ordinarily could be expected to oppose Taft.

Senator Morse (R-Ore), an Eisenhower supporter who has called upon the General to come home and campaign, said in a separate interview he would like to see an Eisenhower slate entered in Wisconsin.

"If a man is holding himself out for the presidency, he ought to be willing to run in every primary," Morse declared. "I think Taft should be in Oregon and Eisenhower should be in Wisconsin."

Legislature Considers Request To Go Ahead With Mackinac Bridge

LANSING—(AP)—The Legislature today was considering a direct appeal of the Mackinac Bridge Authority for permission to go ahead with actual planning of a bridge across the Straits of Mackinac.

The appeal was delivered by Prentiss M. Brown of Detroit, chairman of the Authority, at an informal joint convention of the House and Senate.

Scale Model Displayed

The lawmakers examined the $2,000 scale model of the bridge which was set up in the House chamber and heard outlines of reports of the authority on preliminary studies.

Brown said the majority of the Authority favored a pending bill which would advance the Authority $2,000,000 to draw up working plans for the bridge and do preliminary work.

Failinig this, Brown said, the Authority asked for power to accept financial aid from private bond issues or federal government loans to get the project under way. Such a bill, he revealed, is ready for introduction.

Would Save 7 Million

The first measure, Brown said, would save at least $7,000,000 in interest charfes on the total bond issue which would not need to be floated for perhaps two years if the preliminary money were advanced.

The three consulting engineers hired by the Authority told the lawmakers the bridge is "thoroughly feasible and economically practical."

Engineers O. H. Ammann, D. B. Steinman, and G. B. Woodruff were introduced as "among the world's greatest bridge engineers."

"There is nothing in the project which present unprecedented problems," said Woodruff. "Like problems have been successfully solved elsewhere."

Traffic Increasing

Brown outlined the more recent report of Cloverdale and Colpitts, New York consulting engineers, which predicted that traffic over the bridge would range from 1,850,000 vehicles in 1956 to 4,610,000 in 1986.

If the same tolls are charged as on the present ferries, the report said, the $87,000,000 estimated cost of the bridge would be paid off in 30 years. Under an alternate plan, the cost would be paid off in 24 years if the state appropriated some $500,000, the amount of the annual loss from the operation of the ferries, for bridge maintenance.

Brown said the traffic engineering firm was among the most highly regarded in the country and that most of their predictions of traffic over other bridges in the country had been more than borne out.

Congress May Slash Military Aid Unless NATO Gets Results

By STAN SWINTON

LISBON, Portugal — (AP)—The Western Allies opened a dispute-bogged North Atlantic Council meeting today. It may achieve historic progress.

Overshadowing the meeting was the urgent conviction that the sessions must produce concrete progress toward European defense. Otherwise, the United States Congress may slash its multi-billion dollar military aid bill, regarded as essential to Allied rearmament plans.

Put Up Or Shut Up

The Allied foreign, defense and finance ministers and their brainiest advisers trooped into the gleaming white marble chamber of the Portuguese National Assembly for the public opening session.

Greece and Turkey are attending for the first time as full members, swelling to 14 the nations linked in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The other members are the United States, Britain, France, Portugal, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Canada and Iceland.

In private conversations before the meeting opened, senior American delegates expressed conviction Congress is in a put-up-or-shut-up mood.

German Accord Reached

Secretary of State Dean Acheson flew in last night with one plum believed likely to sweeten the Congressional mood—a Big Three agreement with Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on German affiliation with western defense through membership in the six-nation European army.

A communique issued in London yesterday said Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and Adenauer reached agreements during weekend conferences that "marked a decisive turning in the cause of peace." Adenauer said "the way is now clear" for Germany to sign a peace agreement with the Big Three occupiers.

But the communique significantly omitted any mention of German demands for membership in NATO, and a high Allied source said the subject was one which does not properly apply to a still-occupied nation.

Ford Tieup Ends At Windsor, Ont.

WINDSOR, Ont.—(AP)—Ford of Canada's strike of 8,800 workers is at an end, barely two days after it began.

Management and the CIO United Auto Workers agreed yesterday to a wage boost of 21 cents an hour—accumulating over a period of months—and the plant here was back in operation today.

A pay increase of 15 cents an hour takes immediate effect. Some of it is retroactive to last June 1.

Another six cents is payable in two parts in the future. There will be a three-cent increase June 1 of this year and another three cents June 1, 1953.

A two-year contract was agreed to. It contains an escalator clause tieing wages in part to the cost of living. Adjustments also were made in seniority and work-shift premium pay.

The 15 cents immediate increase brings the basic hourly pay to $1.50. It has been $1.35.

The escalator clause provides for a one cent an hour increase for each 1.3-point rise in the Canadian cost of living index.

Besides the general increase in pay, 1,300 skilled workers get a ten cents an hour boost and 200 foundry workers five cents.

As major strikes have gone in the auto industry, this one was exceptional for its brevity. It began Sunday night, lasting 50 hours.

Both Ford and the UAW-CIO hailed the settlement as possible assurance of lasting peace.

Noted Actor Dead

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Death has ended the career of Lawrence Grant, 82, one of the top stage and screen actors of a bygone era. The British-born player, who got his start in English musicales and came here in 1908 with a touring stage company, succumbed yesterday after a long illness.

Lincoln Relics Bring $185,253

NEW YORK—(AP)—Relics of a one-time country lawyer sold for $185,253 here yesterday.

The lawyer was Abraham Lincoln. The 392 relics were among 842 items in the famed Lincoln collection of the late Oliver R. Barrett of Chicago, on auction sale yesterday and today at Parke-Bernet galleries.

The sales told the story of Lincoln the man, troubled by self-doubts, quick in wit, rich in prophesy.

"How miserably things seem arranged in this world," he wrote. "If we have no friends, we have no pleasure; if we have them, we are soon to lose them . . ."

He wrote these words to his intimate friend, Joshua Fry Speed.

For this letter and 13 others to Speed, the Barrett Lincoln collection fund paid $35,000—the highest price ever paid for a collection of Lincoln letters. They will be given to the Illinois State Historical Library.

Lincoln's own record of the Lincoln-Douglas debates went for $24,000 to Alfred Whital Stern of Chicago, second highest price of the day.

Many of the items were intimate Lincolnesque material: Lonely letters to his wife, an old text book, an old axe handle, a family Bible.

Senate Slices Local Revenues By 35 Per Cent

LANSING—(AP)—The "no-new-tax" forces in the Senate overpowered opposition yesterday and passed a previously-defeated bill cutting local governments' share of liquor license fees 36 per cent.

Beaten Monday night by one vote, the bill was reconsidered and rammed through with two votes to spare yesterday. It would cut the local share from 85 to 50 per cent.

Informed Senators said the reversal was engineered by the taxation committee which is pursuing a policy of no new taxes, plugging "loopholes" in present taxes and recapturing some of the money now going from the state treasury to local government.

Senators Edward Hutchinson (R-Fennville) and William A. Ellsworth (R-St. Ignace) switched sides and Senator Charles R. Feenstra (R-Grand Rapids), who had not voted Monday, cast his ballot to bring about the reversal.

Huntchinson said he was moved by by information that the recapture would only take $400,000 away from local government but would put $1,293,000 in the state treasury annually.

He said this was because higher license fees and more licenses were going into effect this spring.

More For Teachers

Higher teachers' pensions were approved by the Senate in a bill which now goes to the House. It will cost $1,383,000 more.

The measure increases the minimum pension from $750 to $1,200 a year and in the higher brackets allows $4 a year more for each year of teaching service with a maximum of $120 a year.

With one vote to spare, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill raising the minimum

Jaycees Honor Karl Dickson

Karl Dickson, young Escanaba businessman, last night was presented with the Junior Chamber of Commerce distinguished service award as Escanaba's outstanding young man of 1951.

The presentation was made by Karl's father, Walter Dickson, upon behalf of the Jaycees before a group of approximately 100 local residents, members of the Junior Chamber and the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce and wives.

Dale Vinette, chairman of the Jaycee Award committee and himself a former recipient of the honor, declared that Dickson was selected for his leadership in many community affairs, including the Boy Scouts, Lions club, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and particularly because of an outstanding job in promoting youth activities. Dickson conceived and promoted the Little League baseball program in Escanaba last year and also was a guiding hand behind the Escanaba Cubs junior baseball program.

Explains Jaycee Program

Dickson is associated with his father in the Office Service company, local printing and office service establishment.

Carroll Lundeen, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, outlined the work program of the Jaycees, emphasizing the leadership training program of the organization. He reported that Jaycee members are playing a leading role in many local civic, service and fraternal organizations.

"The Junior Chamber works closely and cooperatively with the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce in promoting civic affairs, "President Lundeen said. "We avoid duplication of efforts and concentrate our work on projects which the Escanaba Chamber cannot reach because of their need to concentrate on their own program."

Senior Chamber's Program

John Fawcett, president of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, explained the program of the senior organization and showed how the two civic groups coordinate their activities.

"Our program serves as a clearing house for many worthwhile promotions," President Fawcett reported. "We promote industrial expansion, develop retail trade promotions, help to secure and to assist in conducting conventions, aid business firms in meeting governmental problems, regulate solicitations, etc."

Hugh Grow, secretary of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, was toastmaster of the affair.

"Operators' teamwork brings aid!"

Mrs. Alice Vanderhaegen

After one of this winter's snowfalls, Mrs. Joseph Sopko of 10710 Somerset, Detroit, began clearing the driveway of her home, when suddenly she had a heart attack.

She managed to get into her house, reach the telephone and dial "Operator." But she couldn't give her own name or address – only that she was "very sick" and wanted help from the neighbors – no one else, just her neighbors.

Kathleen Shankin, a new operator, was on duty at the time. She sensed something was wrong, and quickly handed the call to Mrs. Alice Vanderhaegen, evening chief operator.

Patiently, reassuringly, Mrs. Vanderhaegen talked to Mrs. Sopko and finally managed to get her address. Mrs. Vanderhaegen immediately checked the records and located the telephone of a neighbor whom she called for help.

The neighbor went right to Mrs. Sopko's assistance. In short order, a doctor had the patient taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Sopko's recovering now, thanks to the alertness and competence of two telephone people.

'Chest' Picks New Directors

Directors representing Escanaba, Gladstone and the 14 townships were elected at the annual meeting of the Delta County Community Chest in the Escanaba city hall council chambers last night. Sam Ham, of Escanaba, retiring president, conducted the meeting.

The new board will meet in the near future to elect officers and appoint executive committee members to serve during 1952. The report of the successful drive in 1951 under the county chairmanship of Nicholas Chapekis, of Escanaba, was read by A. W. Moberg, Escanaba, secretary-treasurer, and plans for the future were discussed.

The executive committee will meet regularly during the year to keep the efficient Chest organization throughout the county intact and to make detailed plans for the campaign to be held in October.

Members last night decided to start the next campaign October 15 to coincide with national Community Chest publicity. The advance gift, industrial and certain other committees, however, will begin their work October 1.

Jackson, Sam Ham, Juel Lee, Matt Petersen, Escanaba; Lewis Empson, Wallace Cameron, Gladstone, and the retiring township directors are Chester Feak, Ford River; George Berg, Brampton; Louis Johnson, Escanaba; Mrs. Harold Stern, Fairbanks; Walter Hornstein, Garden; Clarence Larson, Maple Ridge; Mrs. Murray Cole, Masonville; Allen Mercier, Nahma; Sheldon Cobb, Bay de Noc; Mrs. Ted McFadden, and the late Ole Thorsen, Wells.

Following the 6:30 o'clock dinner the annual business meeting will be held and a program will be presented. The speaker will be Miss Mary Belle Shurtleff of Negaunee, a student of Indian folklore and customs who will speak on "Michigan Indians: My Friends and Neighbors."

The business meeting will include the presentation of committee reports and the election of officers.

Circuit Court Will Not Resume Monday

The February term of Delta county circuit court will not be resumed next Monday as was tentatively planned by Circuit Judge Glenn W. Jackson.

Instead, Judge Jackson will reconvene circuit court here after the Marquette county session which begins March 3.

Notification of the change of plans was made by Judge Jackson in a letter to County Clerk Mary Constantineau.

At the close of the circuit court term last week, Judge Jackson anticipated that the court calendar of Iron county, where he is currently conducting circuit court term, would allow him to return to Escanaba Feb. 25 to reopen business in the unusually heavy Delta county court calendar.

The judge states that the Iron county schedule will keep him there for the second week of the term.

Canada's leading life company again increases policyholders' dividends

With 47% of its assets invested in the United States and announcing a further increase in policy dividends, reducing insurance costs, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada has just released its 81st Annual Report revealing the largest volume of new life insurance issued by any Canadian company in 1951 — over $461 million; an all-time high in benefits paid, and an increase in the interest rate earned on the assets last year.

George W. Bourke, President, in announcing 1951 figures for Canada's leading life company, stated that total Sun Life insurance in force now stands at $4,801,000,000, an increase during the year of $340 million. Annuities in force provide immediate or future payments to the amount of $104 million per annum. Group insurance in force now totals $1,254 million, an increase of $168 million (15.5%) during 1951. The rate of interest earned on the assets last year was 3.7% as compared with 3.61% in 1950; 3.48% in 1949 and 3.30% in 1948.

The Sun Life, a leading international life company with policyholder - service branches from coast to coast, last year paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries the all-time record sum of $125 million. $35 million was paid to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders, $16 million under annuity contracts, $36 million for maturing endowments, and the balance in dividends to policyholders, disability benefits, etc. Since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871, total benefits paid to policyholders and beneficiaries have amounted to $2,486 million. While the Company operates in 20 countries, 90% of the business originates in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

State Asks Bids On 5 Projects

LANSING—The State Highway Department will take bids February 26 in Escanaba on five Upper Peninsula state trunkline projects, Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler said today.

The projects are:

2.876 miles of grading and drainage structures and aggregate surface on M-67 from US-41 east and north in Alger county, and .283 miles of curb and gutter construction and widening of the roadway to 40 feet through Trenary.

1.364 miles of grading and drainage structures and aggregate surface on M-94 from 0.5 miles west of Chatham to 0.8 miles south of Chatham in Alger county, and .452 miles of curb and gutter construction and the widening of the roadway to 40 feet through Chatham.

These above two projects are part of the grade, alignment and improvement of M-67 and M-94 in preparation for future bituminous surfacing. The completion date for these projects is October 31,1952.

6.364 miles of bituminous surface on M-35 from Perkins to Trombly in Delta county. The grading and placing of ditch structures has recently been completed and this project will finish the general improvement of this section of M-35. The completion date for this project is August 31, 1952.

4.976 miles of grading and drainage structures and 21-foot aggregate surface on M-94 from US-41 east to the county line in Marquette county. This project is also in preparation for future bituminous surfacing. The date for completion of this project is November 30,1952.

Bridge to carry the relocation of M-134 over Nuns creek, 7.0 miles west of Hessel in Mackinac county. The work will consist of construction of a new reinforced concrete and steel bridge and 420 lineal feet of approach grading. Completion date for this project is November 15, 1952.

Bridge to carry M-94 over Slapneck creek, 1.6 miles west of Forest lake in Alger county. The present bridge is too narrow and dangerous for present day traffic. The work will consist of construction of a reinforced concrete T-beam structure, removal of the present structure, construction and removal of a temporary bridge and approaches and 0.185 miles of approach grading and aggregate surface for the new bridge. Completion date for this project is November 15, 1952.

Colorful Escanaba Ice Revue Opens Five-Day Stand Tonight

ESCANABA'S 1952 ice revue opens a five-day stand at the Fairgrounds indoor rink this evening. Judging from the comments of the revue leaders, this year's show should compare favorably with all of the high class ice shows produced in Escanaba in past years.

The annual Escanaba ice revue has brought a lot of fame and good comments to this city. It is heralded as one of the top small-town ice shows in the nation. The fact that it requires five performances to accommodate all of the people, local and outsiders, who desire to see it indicates the quality of the performance and the excellence of the presentation.

The reputation of Escanaba as a leader in figure skating has developed because of the ice revue. Many communities in the north produce an ice show each winter but none has gained the reputation for excellence as has the Escanaba show.

The large number of Escanabans, all graduates of the local ice revue, who have moved forward to fame in the professional skating field is indicative of the high esteem in which the local ice show is held by people who know quality in figure skating.

Only this week it was announced that the first Escanaba skater to reach the big time, Jon Flanagan, has accepted a contract to skate in Paris through the summer and fall months. Howard Sullivan is another local skater who reached solo fame in professional skating before his career was interrupted by a call to military service. And tren, of course, there are a number of outstanding girl skaters who have made good in the professional shows.

Italy Voids Its Treaty With Russia

FOR all practical purposes, the original Italian peace treaty signed by the Western powers and Russia is a dead letter.

Dec. 21 was a significant date in the treaty's history. By that time Italy had received approval from 10 signatories for treaty revisions releasing the country from severe arms limitations.

Yet one obstacle still lay in Italy's path. The Soviet Union and its satellites refused to agree to revision. Technically, therefore, the pact had to be viewed as continuing in legal force.

The Russians like to put these legal niceties to work for them as they throw up barriers to objectives desired by the West.

So there can't help but be a marked show of satisfaction on this side of the Iron Curtain when Italy is observed turning a technicality to its own advantage.

A little while back Russia, acting in the UN Security Council, vetoed Italy's admission to the United Nations for the fifth time.

And on this occasion the Italians did more than just vent their anger on the Kremlin. They converted Soviet obstreperousness into a device for completely voiding the peace treaty.

In a firm note to the Russian government, Italy declares that Moscow's constant vetoes of Italian admission to the UN amount to violation of the treaty. Rome states that it therefore no longer considers itself bound by its terms.

The Italians point out that Russia assumed, in the treaty preamble, an undertaking to "support Italy's application to become a member of the United Nations."

They do not see how five vetoes can be judged fulfillment of this obligation.

With a nice display of nerve, the Italians go further. They make plain to the Kremlin that they not only feel free to ignore arms ceilings fixed by the treaty, but they intend to make no further reparations payments to Moscow. This is hitting the Communists where it hurts.

The inevitable screams from Moscow will not conceal the fact that the Reds have been beaten at their own game. Actually the Italians have given them language and tactics of the only sort they understand.

Furthermore, the Russians' moral position before Italy and the world is pitifully weak. They have already shattered peace treaties with the satellite nations, making unilateral revisions to suit themselves—without the slightest gesture toward the requirements of true international legality.

There is no pain quite so extruciating as that induced by the use of one's own favorite weapons. This is the anguish the Russians must now bear.

Local Units Save Liquor License Fees

BY the margin of a single vote, the Michigan Senate has defeated a bill which was designed to reduce from 85% to 50% the share of liquor license revenues now being rebated to cities, villages and townships. The bill has already been enacted by the House.

Thus, local units of government have saved $1,200,000 of revenue that otherwise would have been lost. The narrow margin of victory, however, should be a lesson to local units of government—and a warning.

The 85% return to local units is designed to reimburse them for enforcement of the state liquor laws. It is common knowledge that many units of government do not spend a nickel to enforce the liquor laws. Few spend the amount of money received by them in liquor license fees.

Of course, no one wants a waste of these funds. It is not sensible for a local governmental unit, such as a city or village, to give a handout to a few of its citizens merely to conform to the letter of the law. The funds should be used for law enforcement.

It is quite apparent that if the local units fail to do a better ob of enforcing the liquor laws, the Legislature will assuredly withdraw a portion of the funds now being disbursed to local units for this purpose.

WRONG PLACE TO VISIT
(Marinette Eagle Star)

A member of the Marinette city council was in Madison the other day and inquired about how city manager form of government fared there. He could not receive the benefit of much experience there because city manager government lasted but a short time in Madison. One segment of influence set out to kill it as fast as possible and succeeded.

If a councilman seeks experiences of communities where city manager government has existed for years he should visit Janesville and a number of other Wisconsin communities, or he could get a vast fund of information in Escanaba, Sault Ste. Marie or Ironwood in the Upper Peninsula, to mention some of the Michigan communities which have city managers.

The best information on the operations of city manager government should be obtainable in communities of the size of Marinette. Ironwood and Escanaba are among them in the Upper Peninsula and Two Rivers, Ashland and Shorewood in Wisconsin are almost the size of Marinette.

Gordon Martin's Rhyme

BACK WHACKER

I'm against the guy who stops you on the street to tell you jokes, and who whacks you on the back until your temper he provokes. "Here's a story that will kill you," he is always quick to say, and you're stuck with him no matter how you try to get away. With his arm around your shoulder, he relates his funny tale, and it often is a yarn that you consider very stale.

But you wouldn't wind his jokes, if he would only realize, that he doesn't have to maul you when he tells his latest prize. For besides the whacks upon your back, he thumps you on the chest, or he pokes you in the ribs to emphasize his little jest. So I wish he'd simply, go his way, or else he takes the chance, that some day I'll lose my temper and I'll kick him in the pants.

Weather Bureau Now Forecasts 'Outlooks' 30 Days In Advance

WASHINGTON, D. C. —High in the upper atmosphere are signs of storms yet unborn—of distant cold spells, rain-laden winds and blanketing snows.

The weatherman is learning how to read these signs and to warn of bad weather as much as a month before it strikes, the National Geographical Society says.

For the third successive year in 1952, the U. S. Weather Bureau will issue twice-monthly "outlooks" predicting general weather trends for wide areas of the nation 30 days in advance. About 3,000 subscribers now buy these extended forecasts. Briefly-worded summaries reach millions of people through press and radio.

CALIFORNIA FOREWARNED

How close such predictions come was shown by the recent storms along the Pacific Coast. On the day after New Year's the Weather Bureau issued its outlook for January. It predicted below-normal temperatures and heavy precipitation west of the Continental Divide. A map showed two possible storm tracks converging from the far Pacific over California. Since then, repeated deluges of mid-winter snow and rain in the West have more than borne out the forecast.

Modern long-range forecasting is based upon the theory that weather in any given area may be determined by far-off events, through constant movement of the restless layer of air that blankets the turning earth.

In the middle latitudes of the northern hemisphere, for example, there is a relentless flow of air from west to east. Waves in this giant river in the sky undulate north and south, forming troughs and crests.

Two to six miles above the earth are the pathways where weather moves and is made. To foretell the unfolding seasons and their vagaries over the United States, weathermen now chart condition of the atmosphere over the entire northern hemisphere, high into the stratosphere.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

SALT LAKE CITY — At dinner with Gov. J. Bracken Lee, the subject of government spending came up. I thought I had said some rather strong things about certain forms of government waste but found I was mild compared with the new Republican governor of Utah.

A delightful and vigorous person, the governor claimed that government spending was "creeping Socialism," the ruination of the nation, and that practically all spending should be curtailed by Washington. I tried to point out that certain states and even big business might squawk to high heaven if "creeping Socialism" was stopped but the governor is an energetic talker, and I fear I was not too convincing.

Later I did some research on "creeping Socialism" and its benefits to certain states and business groups. Here are the results:

U. S. STEEL CORPORATION

Biggest boon to Utah has been the operation of a steel mill at Geneva. Governor Lee told me this greatly increased the population of Salt Lake City and the surrounding area and contributed generously to local prosperity.

However, the U. S. Steel Corp. at first opposed the production of steel in Utah. Judge Elbert Gary, former head of U. S. Steel, scoffed at the idea when I interviewed him many years ago, and his successors continued to scoff—even after Pearl Harbor. In fact, they were so opposed to western steel production that the federal government had to take the initiative itself for the Geneva plant.

Uncle Sam took all the risk and after proving that the steel industry in the far west could be successful, then U. S. Steel, supported by some astute lobbying by ex-Gov. Herbert Maw of Utah and ex-Sen. Abe Murdoch, got the federal government to sell the Geneva plant to U. S. Steel for about 20 cents on the dollar.

The steel plant cost the taxpayers $191,326,000. It was sold to U. S. Steel for $47,175,000. Direct subsidy to U. S. Steel and the state of Utah was $144,151,000.

FORT DOUGLAS, UTAH

On the foothills just above Salt Lake City stands Fort Douglas, an important Army installation. After the war, a large hunk of the Fort's territory, plus important buildings, were turned over to Governor Lee's state of Utah, and are now a part of the University of Utah.

AIRLINES SUBSIDIES

Utah, an inland state, benefits from quick airline transportation. Most people don't realize it, but the airlines, though now big business, get an annual subsidy of $95,000,000 through "creeping Socialism." On top of this they get the advantage of 70,000 miles of air lanes serviced by radio range stations, beacons and traffic controls, all paid for by the federal government The railroads have to pay for their own signals, telegraph and upkeep of their tracks, while the airlines get like services free. In addition, the airplanes get the use of airports, usually supplied by municipalities, tax-free. The railroads pay taxes on their property.

In 1951 the taxpayers shelled out $21,361,040 to construct new towers, beacons, and radar for the airways, plus another $73,931,733 for personnel to operate these safety aids, plus another $37,000,000 for runways and construction work at airports.

The airlines are now big business. I agree with Governor Lee that this is "creeping Socialism." But he'll find that big business will be the first to howl if it's stopped.

SHIPPING SUBSIDIES

Also the first to yell if we stop "creeping Socialism" will be another big-business group, the shipping lines. American shipowners get $30,000,000 annually in operating subsidies. On top of this the United States Lines last year got a construction subsidy of $18,225,000 plus an indirect subsidy of $24,061,000 for national defense in building the new vessel, the United States.

American Export Lines is due to get a $26,000,000 subsidy for the Independence and the Constitution, but after Controller-General Lindsay Warren objected to "creeping Socialism" and proposed curtailing subsidies, the American Export Lines threatened to dump the ships in the lap of Uncle Sam.

PUBLIC ROADS

Another form of "creeping Socialism" is the government's annual subsidy to the states to build highways. This costs the federal taxpayers about half a billion dollars a year and is allocated to Governor Lee of Utah and the other 47 states.

If this were curtailed every bus line, trucking company, and many private motorists would be at the door of Congress in about 24 hours demanding that "creeping Socialism" for the highways be reinstated.

Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Washington, D. C.—Secretary of War Stimson announced that the nation was massing its forces for the earliest possible offensive and would not disperse its strength to combat such coastal raids as the German attack on the Dutch oil island of Aruba which must be expected "all along our coasts."

London—Winston Churchill named Sir Stafford Cripps, former ambassador to Moscow and rising star in British politics, House of Commons leader in a cabinet reshuffle dictated by parliamentary criticism over Britain's recent military reverses and by the approach of vital spring offensives.

Escanaba—Robert Temby, a student in Escanaba Senior High School, won ninth place in a national essay contest on the subject of "Printing and Defense," sponsored by International Printing Ink and National Graphic Arts Education Association.

20 YEARS AGO

Shanghai — The great army of military strength Japan has been massing during the past weeks was flung against the Chinese positions along a 16-mile front from Shanghai to Woosung in the greatest military action since World War I.

Gladstone — The Michigan Tech hockey team from Houghton came to Gladstone to meet a local hockey team in a hockey contest on the school rink.

Wells — A fire of undetermined origin swept through the Earle Kempe home at 13 Highland avenue causing almost total destruction of the home and furniture.

Indian Ruins Cost City $14,000 A Year But Taxpayers Don't Mind

By HOWARD DeWALD
NEA Special Correspondent

PHOENIX, Ariz. —(NEA)— An item of "$14,119 for a prehistoric ruins" in the annual city of Phoenix budget caused a new taxpayer to raise an eyebrow.

"What new kind of political fixing is this?" he wanted to know.

He later found everything was proper. No one had bothered to tell him Phoenix is the only city in the country that maintains what archaeologists term a prehistoric monument and it needed $14,119 to operate the next fiscal year.

Called Pueblo Grande, the monument is the ruins of a village and Community granary used by Indians about 700 A. D. when corn and other domesticated plants were introduced into what is now the Southwest.

There are numerous other prehistoric monuments throughout the country, but they are all under the care of the federal government.

* * *

To preserve, develop, and interpret the history of the ruins and its lost civilization, Phoenix employs the only man to hold a civil service rating as a city archeologist. He is Odd S. Halseth, a sage, 59-year-old Norwegian immigrant who believes the world should look to the past to prepare the future.

Phoenix taxpayers would almost sooner have the tax rate boosted than shut off operation of Pueblo Grande. Although there are no financial returns from the ruins, the chamber of commerce figures that in tourist dollars they are worth from $50,000 to $75,000 yearly. Equally intangible are the values received in the form of services to schools, clubs, and interested citizens.

ODD S. HALSETH AND RELICS: Past prepares for the future.

* * *

Halseth is keeper of the memories and relics of the Hohokam, a Pima Indian word meaning "dead" or "disappeared" and applied in archaeology to designate the prehistoric Indians who lived in the valleys of the Gila and Salt rivers for more than 1000 years. They abandoned the area in Central Arizona about 1400 A.D.

The Hohokam left other mounds and ruins in the Phoenix vicinity, all of which have been explored and dug into for pertinent historical data and archaeological artifacts by Halseth.

One such mound is on the site of a new addition to a Phoenix hospital. Since Halseth had no further use for the mound and a new hospital building would soon cover it, The Dons, a Phoenix tourist promotion club, arranged for the public to spend a day digging at the site.

Expect Caterpillar Outbreak In Eastern U. P. Again Next Spring

LANSING—Eastern upper peninsula citizens can expect another spectacular outbreak of millions of forest tent caterpillars next spring, about early May.

While forecasting an infestation which could top last spring's hordes . . . when the bugs stripped mainly aspen foliage on 525,000 timbered acres and made both road and rail traffic slippery going . . . the conservation department advises there is no cause for undue alarm.

Outbreak will be heavier at the start but possibly of shorter duration than last year, an egg survey indicates. "The food supply in many areas may be consumed before the bugs mature causing mass starvation," says Norman F. Smith, department staff forester. "At the same time," Smith assures, "parasites and other natural enemies will be building up and could help control the bug by 1953."

The area fanning out from Sault Ste. Marie south to St. Ignace will be hit the hardest. Forecast is a light infestation in the Newberry area and "light pockets" in Marquette, Dickinson, Menominee and Delta counties. In the lower peninsula, active pockets are expected in Presque Isle and Cheboygan counties.

Rarely does this insect injure farm crops; sometimes it is mistaken for a real crop destroyer, the "army worm" common out west. The caterpillar does amount to considerable nuisance around resorts, farms and small communities when the gigantic bug army moves about searching for food, overrunning highways, fields and buildings and literally driving people out of the woods.

First choice of the bugs are aspen stands, which predominate in mentioned areas. Damage to aspen forests generally is not great, with relatively few trees killed as the result of even four or five successive defoliations. Next spring's outbreak will be Michigan's fourth in a row. Trees defoliated in May and June leaf out again by August.

"Cost of aerial spraying of all infested areas would be nearly a million dollars and would be entirely unwarranted in view of the fact there is no great threat to timber," explains Smith. He adds that spraying small areas of privately-owned land can be done and would give seasonal relief, but is costly and complicated where many small ownerships are involved. For those who do want to undertake spraying, technical advice is available from the local district forester or the department's forestry division, Lansing.

Outbreaks have occurred at irregular intervals since Colonial times. Michigan's infestation is part of a general upswing in the insect's abundance in Lake states and Canada involving millions of acres.

Good Evening...

By CLINT DUNATHAN

FAT AND HEALTHY—Medical science has for several years pointed to obesity as a handicap rather than an advantage.

Such expressions as "fat and jolly," "fair, fat and forty," and "extra padding is good for your bones" are now recognized as fallacy. For overweight folks are not happy about their condition and medical science reveals that obesity does have a direct influence on health and disease.

The trim figure is not only fashionable —it is statistically less hazardous as a house in which to live. Not only that, but overweight can warrant a higher premium cost for life insurance solely on that basis.

* * *

THE FORTUNATE SKINNY — Usually an object of envy is the thin or normal-weight individual who "can eat everything" and never enlarge his waistline.

Actually he is to be envied, according to health statistics, for if he is a first class risk in other respects his life expectancy is increased and his life insurance premiums are lower than for the overweight.

The chap with the lean and hungry look may be ambitious and driving and small comfort to a Caesar, but he has the satisfaction of a trim waistline and the possibility of longer life—unless his ambition brings him to a violent and untimely end.

But under no circumstances should the string bean be credited with virtues of abstinence which he does not possess. He is just naturally thin and it is unlikely he was chubby and dimpled even as a baby.

* * *

SLOW AND FAST—The bodies of some persons do not burn up all the fat they take in, but store up the excess fat in the body tissues. Such persons generally gain too much weight.

In general, a person can lose or gain weight either by eating less or more. The principle used in dieting is to regulate the diet so the body must draw on its reserve stores of fat.

If you are greatly overweight or underweight the best thing to do is to consult a physician. He will assist you in following a diet best suited to your physical condition.

* * *

FADS AND FANCIES—The ladies who are accustomed to shunning butter this week and sweets the next according to the latest reducing fad will find the doctor more helpful than a calorie guide.

Enthusiasm is necessary for a successful campaign against fat cells, but it must ful campaig nagainst fat cells, but it must be sustained and continuing. Switching from one diet fad or fancy to another may be amusing to the overweight but it is seldom effective as a reduction program.

The doctor views weight reduction as a health measure, not entertainment. But if the obese man or woman sincerely desires a slimmer figure they will reduce their food intake as well as their conversation on the subject and stick to the diet prescribed by their doctor.

* * *

THE GRIM REMINDER—According to an article reprinted from Postgraduate Medicine and distributed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, overweight is one of the factors that speed the onset and course of degenerative diseases.

Results of a 25-year study show that uniformily the death rates of overweights exceed those of standard risks, the insurance company reports.

Degenerative diseases of the heart, circulatory system, and kidneys accounted for most of the excess mortality among the overweight; extremely high rates were recorded for diabetes, gall bladder disorders, and cirrhosis of the liver.

Weight control is a vital health challenge. Perhaps dieting might be taken more seriously by the obese if it were viewed in that light rather than as the difference between a fat or fashionable appearance.

Lakes Shipping May Be Early

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich — (AP)—Unusually light ice conditions prompted speculation here today that Great Lakes shippers may be heading into a record hauling season.

With eight to 10 inches in the St. Mary's River—six to 14 inches less than 1950—Prospects, barring radical weather change, indicated an opening of navigation in little more than four weeks. The earliest opening on record was March 22, 1949.

An early opening might enable shippers to exceed the record 120,199,479 tons hauled through the Sault locks in 1942. Last year, with 20-24 inches of ice in the St. Mary's River at a comparable time, shippers went on to a season of 120,068,562 tons.

Among other sources of optimism was the fact that Marquette harbor was only partially covered with ice with open water extending over half the inlet and out into Lake Superior.

More than 1,500 vessels are being readied for the new season.

Sheriff Who Closed Gambling Spots Wins Again In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)— Sheriff Frank J. Clancy, who carried out his promise to the Kefauver crime investigating committee and closed the lush gambling casinos of Jefferson parish, won re-election yesterday.

He piled up a victory margin of almost four-to-one over Beauregard Miller, a Gretna marshal who campaigned for "home rule." Complete but unofficial returns from Jefferson parish, part of metropolitan New Orleans, gave Clancy 28, 124 votes and Miller 7,415.

Clancy has been a political power in the parish for so long that it is known as "Clancy's Kingdom."

Clancy promised the Kefauver committee he would close the swanky gambling spots in his parish' at a Washington hearing in January, 1951. He purged himself of a charge of contempt of the Senate during the hearing.

Yesterday's election actually was a Democratic runoff primary, but Clancy has no opposition from any other party.

Quebec Judge Dies At Murder Hearing; New Trials Expected

HULL, Que.—(AP)—High legal authorities expressed belief that new trials for two men accused of wife killing would result from the courtroom death here last night of Justice Valmore Bienvenue.

The 57-year-old judge collapsed while delivering his charge to the jury in the murder trial of Rheal Leo Bertrand of Ottawa, accused of killing his 52-year-old wife.

The jurist died in his chambers a few minutes after he collapsed.

Less than two weeks ago Bienvenue had presided at the trial of Gerald Ryan, 22-year-old camp chef accused of strangling his wife at Temiskaming, Que. Ryan was found guilty of manslaughter and was awaiting sentence by the judge.

Following Judge Bienvenue's death, Justice Paul Ste. Marie took the bench and adjourned Bertrand's trial until today. He awaited instructions from the attorney-General's office in Quebec.

Sabu Claims Lawyer Took His Case Free To Bask In Publicity

LOS ANGELES — (AP)—Sabu, fighting a $50,000 suit for fees brought by the attorney who successfully defended him in a paternity case, claims the lawyer agreed to take the case for the publicity.

Attorney Sydney M. Williams solicited the case, asked no fee, and said "he would be adequately compensated by the publicity," Sabu's counsel told the court yesterday. He added that Sabu, 26, former "elephant boy" of the movies, gave Williams $1,350 out of sheer gratitude and offered him more.

Two Migs Downed, 5 Damaged By US Sabre Jet Pilots

By STAN CARTER

SEOUL, Korea— (AP) —U. S. Sabre jet pilots today shot down two Communist MIG-15 jets and damaged five in two furious fights over northwestern Korea.

Col. Francis S. Gabreski of Oil City, Pa., one of America's leading World War II aces, and Maj. William T. Whisner of 139 Archer Ave., Shreveport, La., shared credit for one MIG kill Wednesday afternoon.

Each moved to within half a plane of becoming five-MIG jet aces.

Credit for the other MIG destroyed in the afternoon went to Maj. William F. Shaeffer, 209 S. Story St., Boone, Iowa. His total is three destroyed and one probable.

Two MIGs also were damaged in the afternoon clash between 25 Sabres and 70 Russian built swept-wing craft over Sinuiju. The fight lasted 15 minutes.

Despondent Mother Kills 2 Little Boys And Shoots Herself

RENTON, Wash.—(AP)— Two little boys paid with their lives last night and their mother lay gravely wounded today because, she said, it was "the only way out" of domestic financial difficulties she blamed herself for.

The 31-year-old mother is Mrs. Madeline Smith. Dead are John Thomas Smith, 10, and Michael Patrick, 5. Their father, Eugene J. Smith, 30, a consulting engineer, found their bodies when he returned from work last night.

On the table was a four page letter. Before he could read it he heard his wife moan in the bedroom. There he found her gravely wounded, the boys were dead. A rifle lay on the floor.

Mrs. Smith was taken to the new Renton Hospital where she gasped out a statement to County Detective Chief Adam Lyskoski.

"I am tired of being a liar and a cheat," she told Lyskoski. "My husband earned $5,000 last year and I spent all of it. I didn't do anything right."

The letter to her husband said she had dissipated family savings, allowed payments on the house, car and freezer to lapse.

NEW YORK — (AP) — A faint glimmer of buying support came into the Stock Market today after an opening decline.

The market yesterday was hard hit in a selling spree that sent prices down by 1 to more than 3 points and lowered the price level more sharply than in any market since last October.

Oils, rails, chemicals, and coppers were among the heaviest major divisions. Steels and motors did rather better than other sections of the list and managed to maintain a fairly steady base.

The fall yesterday was attributed by most brokers to an accumulation of adverse economic factors together with widespread technical weakness within the market itself.

Added to that was a renewal of uncertainties over the progress of truce talks in Korea, with the prospects brighter for an understanding, and a new possibility of a settlement of the Iranian oil impasse.

The London market for metal stocks was weak yesterday because of the outlook for lower prices, and again today the weakness continued.

Corporate Bonds were steady.

Pontiac Pair Faces Charge Of Packing Sand In Scrap Steel

DETROIT — (AP)—Two Pontiac scrap dealers faced arraignment in federal court here today on charges of selling bales of scrap steel loaded with sand and dirt.

Benjamin and Arthur Monson were indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury on seven counts. The charges included selling at over ceiling prices and failure to keep proper shipping records.

The Office of Price Stabilization said it was the first criminal action against scrap dealers in this area. An investigation of other dealers is now under way.

The indictment charged the Monsons with selling adulterated bales of steel to the Great Lakes Steel Co. for the full OPS price of $6.24 for 365 pounds. The OPS said the buyer was paying about $2.50 a bale too much for the actual metal received.

The steel company had complained that an abnormal amount of slag was appearing at its mills. The company said its furnaces were being damaged.

If convicted, the Monsons could be sentenced to a maximum of seven years and fined $70,000.

Mrs. Heart, Doomed To Die 2 Years Ago, Still Lives On $10,000

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Remember Mrs. Heart?

She's the anonymous Oklahoma City woman who three years ago said she was given only a year to live and asked the nation's newspaper readers how she should spend $10,000 in savings to enjoy her remaining days.

Mrs. Heart is still alive—two years after doctors said she would die from a heart ailment.

She said yesterday she is "living very carefully," adding:

"All I do is try to forget things and just live from day to day. I won't permit myself even a little bit of overexertion."

Mrs. Heart received thousands of suggestions on what she should do with the $10,000. But she decided to live out her days frugally as usual, not spend the money and "pamper my heart."

"I'm tickled to death to be doing so well." she explained.

A native of Ligonier, Ind., Decker graduated from Michigan State college in 1915 and taught in Indiana and Michigan secondary schools before joining the MSC staff as Eaton county agricultural agent in 1919.

Two years later he became Jackson county agricultural agent and in 1928 was appointed a college farm crops specialist. He successively held the posts of assistant state leader of county agricultural agents and assistant director of the Cooperative extension Service until he was named to head the Farm Crops Department in 1944.

The estate was divided into six equal shares with the income going to the widow, Jane Cameron Briggs, and the children.

Provisiono was made for scholarship funds of $10,000 at Michigan State College and $5,000 at the University of Detroit.

Whitefish Township Audit Refused On Tahquamenon Bridge

LANSING — (AP) — Attorney General Frank G. Millard has rejected a petition of citizens of Whitefish township, Chippewa county, for an audit of township books.

He said an investigation by the Chippewa county prosecutor showed that nine of the signatures on the petition were invalid and that therefore the petition lacked 25 per cent of the registered voters as required by law.

However, Millard wrote the petitioners that if they believed irregularities existed they could present the facts to the county prosecutor and ask for a warrant. If the prosecutor refuses to issue a warrant, Millard said, his office can be asked to review the prosecutor's refusal to determine whether he acted properly.

The petitioners alleged irregularities by township officials in clearing a right-of-way for the Tahquamenon River bridge approaches.

Collision Of Auto And Truck Kills 3 Near New Buffalo

NEW BUFFALO, Mich.—(AP) — Three men were killed in a collision between an automobile and a truck on US-12 northwest of here last night.

One of the victims, tentatively identified as Theodore F. Dugan, 22, of Grand Rapids, was believed an airman from the Selfridge Field base.

A second was tentatively identified as John Mc Cran, 18. Papers on his person indicated that McCran was a native of Scotland.

The body of the car driver was badly burned in a fire that followed the collision. Immediate identification was impossible, State Police said.

Tax Agents Knock Off Big Still At Inkster; 850 Gallons Of Mash

DETROIT—(AP)—Alcohol tax agents knocked off a 75-gallon still and arrested two men at a home in downriver Inkster yesterday.

The federal men said it was one of the biggest illegal liquor operations uncovered in Wayne county since prohibition days.

Samuel Rowe, 36, a factory worker, and James Rowe, 26, his nephew, were charged with violating the federal alcohol tax act.

An automobile belonging to a neighbor couple was seized when it was discovered to contain 300 pounds of sugar. The agents said the neighbors transported sugar to the Rowe home from a grocery.

At the Rowe home the agents also said they found 17 barrels holding 850 gallons of whisky mash.

Military Policies Debated On Delay In Casualty Names

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Should the military announce immediately the names of men killed, injured or missing in major accidents or withhold them until relatives have been notified

This question, for which logical and humane arguments can be made on either side, was pointed up today by a new Air Force regulation.

The regulation increases from four to 12 hours the time that must elapse between the sending of official notification to next of kin and the release of names for use by press and radio.

Shielded From Shock

What troubles everyone—relatives, military and press-radio—is this:

In holding back names for publication the relatives of 10 or 29 men may be shielded from the shock of receiving the first word through press or radio announcement, if the military has been unable to reach them meanwhile. But the relatives of possibly 10,000 other men, known to be in the area of the accident, undergo hours or days of anxiety until they know the names of their servicemen are not on the grim list.

The military feels that its policy—withholding names for a specified period until either relatives have been notified or it may be assumed sufficient time has elapsed for such notification to be completed—is the lesser of two evils.

Chance For Worry

But the other side of the problem was demonstrated recently in an incident during winter maneuvers at Camp Drum, N. Y. A plane with four crewmen and a load of paratroopers who were to make a drop crashed on takeoff.

Authorities announced that four men were dead. The news appeared in early morning newspaper editions and on radio newscasts.

At Camp Drum for the maneuvers were 33,000 soldiers, paratroopers and members of plane crews. Any of these men could have been in the crash. The base telephones were flooded with calls from anxious relatives. The names of the men were not announced until the following day.

Records Left Behind

Another element, apparently resulting from administration and record-keeping practices, enters into delay in announcement of names of accident victims. The Army and Air Force do not send the service records with units when they move out of home bases into the field for training or maneuvers. These records are kept at the home base. It takes time, especially if accidents occur on holidays when file rooms are not fully staffed, for the field to wire or telephone the home base for the names and addresses of next of kin.

The time interval for publication of names now differs with services. While the Army and Navy follow the general policy of releasing names involved in accidents in the United States after the four-hour interval, the Air Force has revised its time to 12 hours.

An Air Force spokesman says this was done because a survey showed a large percentage of notifications do not reach next of kin in four hours, that sometimes it takes as much as 22 hours.

Modern electronic calculators have taken machine mathematics out of the finger-counting stage. The automatic sequence calculator can "remember" numbers or orders, and work an involved computation from start to finish by itself.

Ice And Snow Cover Michigan

(By The Associated Press)

A sheet of ice and snow was spread over parts of southern Michigan today, slowing automobile traffic and grounding some planes.

Highways south of a line running between Bay City and Grand Rapids were reported slippery and snow-packed. In southeastern Michigan sleet and freezing rain offered extra hazards. But north of the Bay City-Grand Rapids line roads were reported generally clear.

In Flint airline flights were cancelled until noon by a freezing rain followed by heavy snow.

In many parts of the state temperatures hovered just below freezing. Detroit recorded a high of 32 and a low of 24 during the 24 hours preceding 7:30 a. m. Grand Rapids' low was 23.

Sault Ste. Marie tied with Bismarck, N. D., for the nation's coldest recording—7 above.

South Dakota was the hardest hit area in the nation by the widespread storm. Nearly all highway travel there was halted. Moderate to heavy falls also hit North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Scientists have determined that, geologically, the North American continent extends far out under the Atlantic.

Middle East Topic Of Timely Talk By Mrs. George Mansur

Cairo was described as a city of contrast and paradoxes by Mrs. George Mansur, the former Rachel Anthony of this city, in her talk on "Impressions of the Middle East" given at the Washington Birthday dinner, annual event at which Lewis Cass Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolutions, honors its Good Citizenship girls.

Mrs. Mansur is a member of Lewis Cass Chapter.

"On one side was the modern western civilization." Mrs. Mansur, who made the trip with her husband and parents-in-law, to his former home in Iraq, said in telling of the fantastic, exciting city. "A step away was a sight unchanged since the time of Christ—the ancient and modern, mixing and intermingling, but never blending.

"Cairo is the richest, most modern city of the Middle East. In architecture it appears ultra-modern, white, flat roofed structures in keeping with the hot, dry climate. The better residential areas are lovely with huge mansions surrounded by walled gardens. The main business section is about the size of that of Milwaukee. The throngs on the streets almost defy description. The variety of clothing was amazing. Many people wore Western suits and dress, but I also saw pajamas, shorts, bloomers and nightgowns. The national headdress is the fez.

"There were not many 'sheiks' but occasionally one would stalk proudly by. The basic native garment for men seemed to be the nightgown in all shades and conditions of white. Added to that according to the man's financial position were sandals, a sash and perhaps a jacket. The higher class women dress as we do, while the poor cover up as they are able. Some of them were veiled from the nose down and others merely draped lightweight cotton around their heads and shoulders. Unlike home, the throngs on the street were only fifty percent shoppers. The remaining half was divided between peddlers, entertainers and children.

Noise Is Deafening

"The terrible noise of downtown Cairo at night made a great impression on me, "Mrs. Mansur continued. "It seems to be a part of the East. Perhaps the most persistent noise is the honking of cars. As you probably have read, cars in the Middle East drive with their horns. Along with this racket blends the sound of radios and gramaphones owned by all of the small shopkeepers. For some strange reason these always are placed out on the sidewalks, turned up to full volume and never adjusted. Eastern music has a screechy tendancy and under these circumstances it is earpiercing. Movie houses are all open air and from down the street floated pistol shots, the roar of a lion, the scream of tires as the gangster turns the corner with the cops right behind and a woman screaming. Add to these the constant chant of the peddlers and you have a steady roar. No matter what time we returned to our hotel at night the noise rising from the street was deafening.

"Twice in Cairo and also in Alexandria we visited night clubs. We spent an evening in the Bedia which was wrecked in the recent riots. They are all open air as the summers are long and consist of a stage and rows of seats as in a theatre. In the raised section along the back are enclosed booths open only on the stage side which we always took because women never go down into the audience. As a matter of fact local women never go to a night club. The show consists of singers, comedians and mainly dancers."

Mrs. Mansur vividly described an expedition into the native basaar for the purchase of jewelry, and continued with an account of their visit to the Pyramids of Ghiza.

Taxi To Pyramids

"Early one morning we took a taxi to the Pyramids. What could be more incongruous than riding in a Ford along a macadamized highway right up the sandy slope to the plateau upon which these 6,000 year old monumets stand? In the old days the Pyramids were a difficult six mile trip by donkey and ferry from Cairo. Now they lie almost on the outskirts of the city. The road is beautiful, shaded by tamarisks, sycamores and eucalyptus. One side of the road is Cairo and the other rich fields glistening with the waters of the Nile. Luxurious hotels have been built almost in the shadow of the Pyramid of Kheops. As we topped a sandy hill, the Pyramids lay before us—six of them. Two were huge. Beneath in a hollow lay the Sphinx. The Ford, the hotels, the English speaking guides faded away and we felt nothing but over-whelming awe as we stood under the same brilliant Egyptian sky that had hung over this ground 60 to 70 centuries ago, burning the fellahin as they strained over these huge stones."

Mrs. Mansur concluded her talk with keen analysis of the relations between the peoples of the Middle East and this country, and an over-all picture of the political situation today, citing, in closing, the simple philosophy which they follow, "The enemy of my enemy is my friend."

Germfask Man Must Pick Up Rubbish Left On Road Or Visit Jail, Judge Rules

Robert Kinsey, Germfask, was arraigned before Justice of Peace O. C. Estenson Monday afternoon on a charge of littering the highway and upon his plea of guilty was sentenced to 7 days in jail and ordered to pay court costs of $4.30. The jail term was suspended upon the condition that every bit of the rubbish be cleaned up.

The littering occurred a week or more ago. Several pieces of the rubbish bore the name of a Manistique resident but borrowed by Kinsey.

C-C Election Ballots Tallied

H. T. Brewer and Dr. George Kelly were elected to the directorship of the Gladstone Chamber of Commerce and a four-way tie for the third place on the board developed between R. A Hale, O'Neil D'Amour, John P. Vogt and Walter Tang, it is learned from Rev. Theophil Hoffmann, secretary of the C-C.

The election ballots were tabulated Monday following the deadline set for receipt of the mailed ballots.

It is probable that the 4-way deadlock will be broken by lot.

New directors will be seated at the March meeting and the board will then select a new staff of officers.

Retiring directors are Walter Lied, Wallace Cameron, H. J. Skogquist, R. A. Watson and S. R. Venne.

Complete Giving General Aptitude Tests This Week

The giving of Detroit General Aptitude tests to Manistique high school seniors, which started last Thursday, will be completed this week, it is announced by Carl Olson, principal.

Corrected test forms, it is expected, will be returned to students next Monday.

Results of the test will determine a student's over-all ability in 10 general classifications and nine mechanical and nine clerical fields. From the grades obtained on the test a student's I. G. can also be ascertained.

Kuder Preference Tests were given to senior students a week ago.

With the taking of these two types of tests, the principal said, a student can graduate from high school with a fairly accurate idea of the type of vocation he is best fitted for mentally. While not infallible, he said, the tests are as accurate a measure of a student's capacities as has been devised.

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, headaches, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

LeDuc To Head Cancer Drive

J. L. LeDuc has been appointed chairman of the 1952 cancer campaign in Schoolcraft County, it is announced. Sidney Bouwers has been named vice chairman.

This year's drive in the county is scheduled to start April 15 and continue for a month. This is 15 days later than the national campaign opening, the delay being approved because of the condition of rural roads during the spring break-up.

LeDuc succeeds Russell Watson in heading the campaign for funds. Watson, now Rotary district governor, was chairman of the program for the past two years and succeeded in putting the campaign "over the top" both years.

Supports Cytology Lab

Mrs. Vilas Young is cancer dressing chairman and Mrs. Carl Olson heads the educational phase of the program. Other appointments will be made at the annual meeting of the Schoolcraft County Chapter, American Cancer Society, at the end of February.

The local chapter annually contributes half of its receipts to the national organization for research. Of the half which remains in the chapter treasury, a total of $450 is sent yearly to the Upper Peninsula Cytology laboratory in St. Joseph-Lloyd hospital, Menominee.

The cytology laboratory, directed by Dr. Raymond J. Rogers, serves the 15 counties of the Upper Peninsula and four northeastern Wisconsin counties.

Provides Smear Test

There are more than 250 physicians in these counties on the lab's mailing list, all supplied with cytology mailing kits without charge. The laboratory provides a cancer smear diagnostic service to the area it serves, thus making possible at low cost the early detection of cancer.

Dr. Brewster S. Miller, director of professional education of the American Cancer Society, in a recent letter to the cytology lab director said, in connection with the laboratory, that "this is the type of program which we feel the American Cancer Society should be supporting on the local level."

The laboratory was established on Sept. 1, 1950, under the sponsorship and financial support of the U. P. divisions of the American Cancer Society.

Fathers of club members are especially invited to attend the session, Norden said.

Manistique River Full Of Cribs And Booms In Pine Lumbering Period

By W. S. CROWE)

A charming little miss came up to me in the lobby after the high school concert the other night and asked if I could tell her what a "crib" was. It flashed through my mind that she was just "ribbing" me; (with three teenage granddaughters I am quite used to that) and it was on the tip of my tongue to tell her it was something to keep babies in, and to ask her how she ever managed to get out, but then I sensed from the look in her eyes that she was really "honest truly, cross my heart, hope to die", asking for information.

So I told her that the cribs in the river were big square affairs made of 16 or maybe 20 foot logs, bolted together at the corners and filled with heavy rocks, which rested on and were anchored to the river bottom and extended about six feet above the surface of the water at normal level, and that their purpose was to back up the booms.

Then I told her that a "boom" was a string of long logs or tree trunks, chained together end to end, or perhaps square timbers bolted together, which floated on the surface of the water, some of them being movable, so as to control the logs in the river and divert them into the proper channel to the mill which was to cut them.

Extend Miles Up River

A line of these cribs and connecting booms extended for miles up the center of the "Main" river, (the loggers never called it the Manistique). About ½ mile above the Soo Line bridge was the "Main Boom" where cedar logs, tie cuts and shingle bolts were sorted out for the White Marble Lime Company's shingle mill, then located on the east bank of the river just north of the Soo Line.

About a mile up the track from the present Intake Park was the "Dump" where the C. L. Co. dumped logs brought down by rail from up Steuben way into the main river, and just above that was a "Pull Up" where Hall & Buell pulled logs out of the river to ship by rail to their big steam mill at South Manistique, and still farther up the river was the "Sorting Gap" where logs were sorted and diverted to the proper channels.

Then just below the Soo Line bridge, and above the upper dam, a crew of rivermen sorted out the logs for W. L. Mill No. 2 and shunted the rest of the logs through the chute in the dam to go on down the river to be again sorted and divided between the C. L. Mill and W. L. No. 1.

Like Railroad Yard

So it will be seen that the entire river for 7 or 8 miles above Manistique was like a railroad yard where cars are classified and switched to certain tracks just as logs were sorted and switched to the proper river channels. And it was a very lively scene with crews of rivermen guiding the constant stream of floating logs to the busy saw mills with their long wooden "pike poles" with a sharp point and hook on the end with which the logs could be either pushed or pulled. These rivermen were expert log riders. I saw one cross the river on a cedar tie cut without getting wet.

A large floating boom, 3 feet wide and 2 feet deep, formed of clear 12 x 12 white pine "sticks" 48 feet long, bolted together, extended from the C. L. Mill pond on the east side to W. L. Mill No. 1 pond on the west side, just above the lower dam, in the form of a "V" pointing upstream. Its purpose was to divert the logs to either mill, and to keep them from going over the lower dam and out into Lake Michigan. It was about 400 feet long and was anchored to and backed by five or six heavy stone cribs. It floated with its top perhaps six inches above the water and was sometimes used by foot passengers as a short cut across the river. The lumber in that boom would be worth about $10,000.00 on today's market.

No Riding On Boom

Soon after I started work in the C. L. Office I had to "fill in" as "time boy" for several months, to collect the scales, time books, and sales slips from the mills, stores, docks, etc. and have them in the office by 10.00 a. m. and I found that I could save some time by riding across the river on this boom. Mr. Quick saw me one morning and said, "Will, it makes me uneasy to see you riding your bicycle on the boom." I didn't take that seriously until a week later he saw me again, and said, "Will, I think I mentioned that it made me uneasy to see you riding the boom. I hope I won't have to mention it the third time." I said: "I'm sorry Mr. Quick, and I won't do it again."

It required no special ability to ride a bicycle on a walk three feet wide, even if it was floating on the water, but I didn't argue the point with Mr. Quick. I realized what a mill foreman told me; that Mr. Quick was a very mild mannered, soft spoken man who never barked out an order, but that his wishes were orders as far as the men were concerned, and by starting at 6:30 instead of 7:00 I could still get the reports in by 10:00 o'clock, after which I had office work to do until closing time, 8:00 p. m. I thought I was lucky to have a job with such a fine company, and this feeling was shared by 99% of their employes, which brings us up to the young man's question,—"What kind of folks were the C. L. 'lumber barons'?"

Frown On Swearing

One sensed that they were men of calm judgment and great reserve power and resourcefulness who were never in a hurry, and who had complete confidence in their ability to handle any emergency that might arise.

In the seven years I was in the C. L. Office I never saw Mr. Quick, Orr, Mersereau, or any other company official lose his temper, get into a heated argument with an employe, or "high hat" or do anything to humiliate an employe. The humblest employe could meet and talk to any of them "on the level", and that attitude was perfectly natural without a trace of affectation. Nor did I ever hear one of them tell an off color story or utter an oath Mr. Mersereau taught a Sunday School class in the Presbyterian Church and told us one day that folks who used a lot of profanity in every day talk, whose every other word is an oath, aren't usually bad people, but simply ignorant folks who lack the vocabularary to express themselves otherwise.

Germfask Man Must Pick Up Rubbish Left On Road Or Visit Jail, Judge Rules

Robert Kinsey, Germfask, was arraigned before Justice of Peace O. C. Estenson Monday afternoon on a charge of littering the highway and upon his plea of guilty was sentenced to 7 days in jail and ordered to pay court costs of $4.30. The jail term was suspended upon the condition that every bit of the rubbish be cleaned up.

The littering occurred a week or more ago. Several pieces of the rubbish bore the name of a Manistique resident but borrowed by Kinsey.

Police said they were told the trailer was half loaded with rubbish at the time Kinsey asked for it to transport some furniture from Menominee and that he was granted permission to take the trailer on condition that he unload the rubbish at the dumpinig ground.

Police found it scattered along the highway near Ensign and the investigation followed.

C-C Election Ballots Tallied

H. T. Brewer and Dr. George Kelly were elected to the directorship of the Gladstone Chamber of Commerce and a four-way tie for the third place on the board developed between R. A Hale, O'Neil D'Amour, John P. Vogt and Walter Tang, it is learned from Rev. Theophil Hoffmann, secretary of the C-C.

The election ballots were tabulated Monday following the deadline set for receipt of the mailed ballots.

It is probable that the 4-way deadlock will be broken by lot.

New directors will be seated at the March meeting and the board will then select a new staff of officers.

Retiring directors are Walter Lied, Wallace Cameron, H. J. Skogquist, R. A. Watson and S. R. Venne.

Complete Giving General Aptitude Tests This Week

The giving of Detroit General Aptitude tests to Manistique high school seniors, which started last Thursday, will be completed this week, it is announced by Carl Olson, principal.

Corrected test forms, it is expected, will be returned to students next Monday.

Results of the test will determine a student's over-all ability in 10 general classifications and nine mechanical and nine clerical fields. From the grades obtained on the test a student's I. G. can also be ascertained.

Kuder Preference Tests were given to senior students a week ago.

With the taking of these two types of tests, the principal said, a student can graduate from high school with a fairly accurate idea of the type of vocation he is best fitted for mentally. While not infallible, he said, the tests are as accurate a measure of a student's capacities as has been devised.

LeDuc To Head Cancer Drive

J. L. LeDuc has been appointed chairman of the 1952 cancer campaign in Schoolcraft County, it is announced. Sidney Bouwers has been named vice chairman.

This year's drive in the county is scheduled to start April 15 and continue for a month. This is 15 days later than the national campaign opening, the delay being approved because of the condition of rural roads during the spring break-up.

LeDuc succeeds Russell Watson in heading the campaign for funds. Watson, now Rotary district governor, was chairman of the program for the past two years and succeeded in putting the campaign "over the top" both years.

Supports Cytology Lab

Mrs. Vilas Young is cancer dressing chairman and Mrs. Carl Olson heads the educational phase of the program. Other appointments will be made at the annual meeting of the Schoolcraft County Chapter, American Cancer Society, at the end of February.

The local chapter annually contributes half of its receipts to the national organization for research. Of the half which remains in the chapter treasury, a total of $450 is sent yearly to the Upper Peninsula Cytology laboratory in St. Joseph-Lloyd hospital, Menominee.

The cytology laboratory, directed by Dr. Raymond J. Rogers, serves the 15 counties of the Upper Peninsula and four northeastern Wisconsin counties.

Provides Smear Test

There are more than 250 physicians in these counties on the lab's mailing list, all supplied with cytology mailing kits without charge. The laboratory provides a cancer smear diagnostic service to the area it serves, thus making possible at low cost the early detection of cancer.

Dr. Brewster S. Miller, director of professional education of the American Cancer Society, in a recent letter to the cytology lab director said, in connection with the laboratory, that "this is the type of program which we feel the American Cancer Society should be supporting on the local level."

The laboratory was established on Sept. 1, 1950, under the sponsorship and financial support of the U. P. divisions of the American Cancer Society.

Fathers of club members are especially invited to attend the session, Norden said.

Manistique River Full Of Cribs And Booms In Pine Lumbering Period

By W. S. CROWE)

A charming little miss came up to me in the lobby after the high school concert the other night and asked if I could tell her what a "crib" was. It flashed through my mind that she was just "ribbing" me; (with three teenage granddaughters I am quite used to that) and it was on the tip of my tongue to tell her it was something to keep babies in, and to ask her how she ever managed to get out, but then I sensed from the look in her eyes that she was really "honest truly, cross my heart, hope to die", asking for information.

So I told her that the cribs in the river were big square affairs made of 16 or maybe 20 foot logs, bolted together at the corners and filled with heavy rocks, which rested on and were anchored to the river bottom and extended about six feet above the surface of the water at normal level, and that their purpose was to back up the booms.

Then I told her that a "boom" was a string of long logs or tree trunks, chained together end to end, or perhaps square timbers bolted together, which floated on the surface of the water, some of them being movable, so as to control the logs in the river and divert them into the proper channel to the mill which was to cut them.

Extend Miles Up River

A line of these cribs and connecting booms extended for miles up the center of the "Main" river, (the loggers never called it the Manistique). About ½ mile above the Soo Line bridge was the "Main Boom" where cedar logs, tie cuts and shingle bolts were sorted out for the White Marble Lime Company's shingle mill, then located on the east bank of the river just north of the Soo Line.

About a mile up the track from the present Intake Park was the "Dump" where the C. L. Co. dumped logs brought down by rail from up Steuben way into the main river, and just above that was a "Pull Up" where Hall & Buell pulled logs out of the river to ship by rail to their big steam mill at South Manistique, and still farther up the river was the "Sorting Gap" where logs were sorted and diverted to the proper channels.

Then just below the Soo Line bridge, and above the upper dam, a crew of rivermen sorted out the logs for W. L. Mill No. 2 and shunted the rest of the logs through the chute in the dam to go on down the river to be again sorted and divided between the C. L. Mill and W. L. No. 1.

Like Railroad Yard

So it will be seen that the entire river for 7 or 8 miles above Manistique was like a railroad yard where cars are classified and switched to certain tracks just as logs were sorted and switched to the proper river channels. And it was a very lively scene with crews of rivermen guiding the constant stream of floating logs to the busy saw mills with their long wooden "pike poles" with a sharp point and hook on the end with which the logs could be either pushed or pulled. These rivermen were expert log riders. I saw one cross the river on a cedar tie cut without getting wet.

A large floating boom, 3 feet wide and 2 feet deep, formed of clear 12 x 12 white pine "sticks" 48 feet long, bolted together, extended from the C. L. Mill pond on the east side to W. L. Mill No. 1 pond on the west side, just above the lower dam, in the form of a "V" pointing upstream. Its purpose was to divert the logs to either mill, and to keep them from going over the lower dam and out into Lake Michigan. It was about 400 feet long and was anchored to and backed by five or six heavy stone cribs. It floated with its top perhaps six inches above the water and was sometimes used by foot passengers as a short cut across the river. The lumber in that boom would be worth about $10,000.00 on today's market.

No Riding On Boom

Soon after I started work in the C. L. Office I had to "fill in" as "time boy" for several months, to collect the scales, time books, and sales slips from the mills, stores, docks, etc. and have them in the office by 10.00 a. m. and I found that I could save some time by riding across the river on this boom. Mr. Quick saw me one morning and said, "Will, it makes me uneasy to see you riding your bicycle on the boom." I didn't take that seriously until a week later he saw me again, and said, "Will, I think I mentioned that it made me uneasy to see you riding the boom. I hope I won't have to mention it the third time." I said: "I'm sorry Mr. Quick, and I won't do it again."

It required no special ability to ride a bicycle on a walk three feet wide, even if it was floating on the water, but I didn't argue the point with Mr. Quick. I realized what a mill foreman told me; that Mr. Quick was a very mild mannered, soft spoken man who never barked out an order, but that his wishes were orders as far as the men were concerned, and by starting at 6:30 instead of 7:00 I could still get the reports in by 10:00 o'clock, after which I had office work to do until closing time, 8:00 p. m. I thought I was lucky to have a job with such a fine company, and this feeling was shared by 99% of their employes, which brings us up to the young man's question,—"What kind of folks were the C. L. 'lumber barons'?"

Frown On Swearing

One sensed that they were men of calm judgment and great reserve power and resourcefulness who were never in a hurry, and who had complete confidence in their ability to handle any emergency that might arise.

In the seven years I was in the C. L. Office I never saw Mr. Quick, Orr, Mersereau, or any other company official lose his temper, get into a heated argument with an employe, or "high hat" or do anything to humiliate an employe. The humblest employe could meet and talk to any of them "on the level", and that attitude was perfectly natural without a trace of affectation. Nor did I ever hear one of them tell an off color story or utter an oath Mr. Mersereau taught a Sunday School class in the Presbyterian Church and told us one day that folks who used a lot of profanity in every day talk, whose every other word is an oath, aren't usually bad people, but simply ignorant folks who lack the vocabularary to express themselves otherwise.

With Ray Crandall

A recent letter from Mrs. Monroe Knutson of this city tackles a problem which has often bothered us . . . She says, in part: "We have been going to most of the hockey games here and have enjoyed them tremendously. But ever since the game Sunday I've been in a state of confusion wondering what is the matter with the Escanaba hockey spectators. It seems to me the officials and the two teams on the ice are very capable of handling any disputes that may arise—even to the "rhubarb" stage—without insulting and slanderous remarks from the spectators."

* * * * *

She also points out that Escanaba and its people are hosts to visiting hockey teams as much as the Hawk players are . . . "Hockey for Escanaba is a wonderful new sport. So let us be nice and bury the hatchet before the game. Hoping hockey is here to stay," she concludes.

* * * * *

We agree heartily with Mrs. Knutson . . . Hockey is a rough sport with a great deal of body contact . . . Action is fast and sustained and the very nature of the game tends to send tempers flaring at times . . . But as in all other athletic contests there is room for sportsmanship on the part of both players and spectators . . . We have heard many staunch hockey fans declare that the less "rough stuff" and the more hockey the better they like it . . . By rough stuff they mean deliberate fouling and playing the man instead of the puck.

* * * * *

Our fans in Escanaba are loyal and interested, in spite of the fact that the game is relatively new here . . . The Hawks have strong personnel and they've proved they can stay in the "fast" league . . . Interest in junior hockey activities is steadily growing and youngsters are learning the fine points of the game from the older stars . . . That's what we need to have a healthy hockey future in this city . . . And along with it we need good, robust spectators who appreciate ability on the ice and who recognize it in our own Hawks and their opponents as well.

* * * * *

The rapid rise of hockey in Escanaba is one more indication that this city is among the top sports towns in the Upper Peninsula and the state . . . Escanaba's softball program is known as one of the finest, interest in baseball has shown a steady increase and is due for more punch with the development of the Little League program, boxing is well received here as evidenced by the successful Golden Gloves tournaments sponsored by the Lions club and the Press, football and basketball are extremely popular with spectators, and golf and other summer sports attract thousands of players and spectators . . . We join Mrs. Knutson and many other fans in the hope that hockey is here to stay—and we haven't the least doubt that it is.

Hope College New MIAA Cage Champ

(By The Associated Press)

Hope College is the 1952 basketball champion in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

In a high scoring game at Holland Tuesday night Hope clinched the title with an impressive 95 to 76 victory over Kalamazoo. Hope grabbed a 10-point lead in the first quarter and stayed out in front the rest of the game.

Kalamazoo outscored Hope in the second quarter and cut the margin to five points at the end of the first half but was unable to keep up the pace in the second half. Center Ron Hendrickson scored 21 points for Hope while Kalamazoo forward John Stommen took individual scoring honors with 22 points.

8-1 Record

Hope's victory gave it a conference record of 8-1 which is good for the title even if Hope drops its final conference game with Hillsdale Saturday night. Hope has an overall season record of 12-3.

Kalamazoo entered the game with a 6-2 record with the opportutnity of tieing up the league race.

Albion, the defending champion, now is in third place with a 5-3 loop mark.

In another conference game Tuesday night Alma overwhelmed last-place Adrian 76-48. The Scots used their reserves freely in posting their fifth conference victory in nine games. It was Adrian's ninth defeat in the conference without a victory.

Guard Kirk Hamilton with 24 points and Center Bob Pueschner with 16 were high point men for Alma. Center Bob Ohrman was Adrian's best scorer with 18.

Hardy Finn Is Cross Country Olympic Winner

OSLO— (AP) —Veikko Hakulinen, a hardy Finnish 26-year-old foreman of a wood cutting gang, today won the 50 kilometer (31 miles, 120 yards) Olympic cross country ski race when he finished the snow marathon in three hours, 33 minutes and 33 seconds.

It was the second fastest time ever recorded for the distance in Olympic competition. Elis Viklund of Sweden won in 1936 at Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany, in 3:30.11. Nils Karlsson of Sweden captured the 1948 grind at St. Moritz in 3:47.48.

The field, cut down to 36 when the four American entries withdrew when they figured they didn't have a chance against the classy Scandinavians, started out at one minute intervals.

Hakulinen took over the lead at the halfway mark and held it all the way.

Harnies-Foxes Tangle In Independent Clash

What is probably the oldest independent basketball rivalry in the Upper Peninsula will be resumed here Thursday night when the Escanaba Harnischfeger quint entertains the Hermansville Rodman's Bar Foxes at 8:15 at the Junior High gym.

These teams have been matching baskets for many seasons, although this is the first year they have played under their current sponsorship. The present Harnies operated in the past as Swift's Bar, Delta Hardware and Shamrocks. Rodman's quint was formerly the Hermansville Silver Foxes.

In a previous meeting this season the Escanaba team beat the Foxes on the Hermansville court. Oddly enough, the home court advantage so common in basketball, has been conspicuously absent in this series with the visiting team winning more often through the years than the host quint.

Opposing Lineups

The Harnies will again be bolstered with the addition of two of this area's top court performers. Don Lewis and Tom St. Germain will be available for action tomorrow night in addition to regulars Charlie Camps, Bob Dufour, Tom Dufour, Ed Gauthier, Warren Fisher, Mickey Kuchenberg and Joe Friedgen.

Due for a lot of attention by the Harnie cagers is Chick Gerrish, former Soo cage great who has been leading the Foxes on the scoreboard in most of their outings.

In addition to Gerrish, Hermansville will have Steve and Tony Machalk, Ayotte, Tulio Marana, George and Guildo Maule and Fochesato in action.

The game will serve as a benefit affair for the Escanaba Basketball association and is set as the season's Booster game.

The preliminary at 7 will feature Escanaba's Al's Bar against the Powers-Spalding quint.

Flying Housewife Is U. S. Double Winner

OSLO — (AP) — Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence, 19-year-old skiing wizard from Rutland, Vt., completed an Olympic double today by winning the women's slalom ski race with an amazing second run after taking a tumble on her first descent.

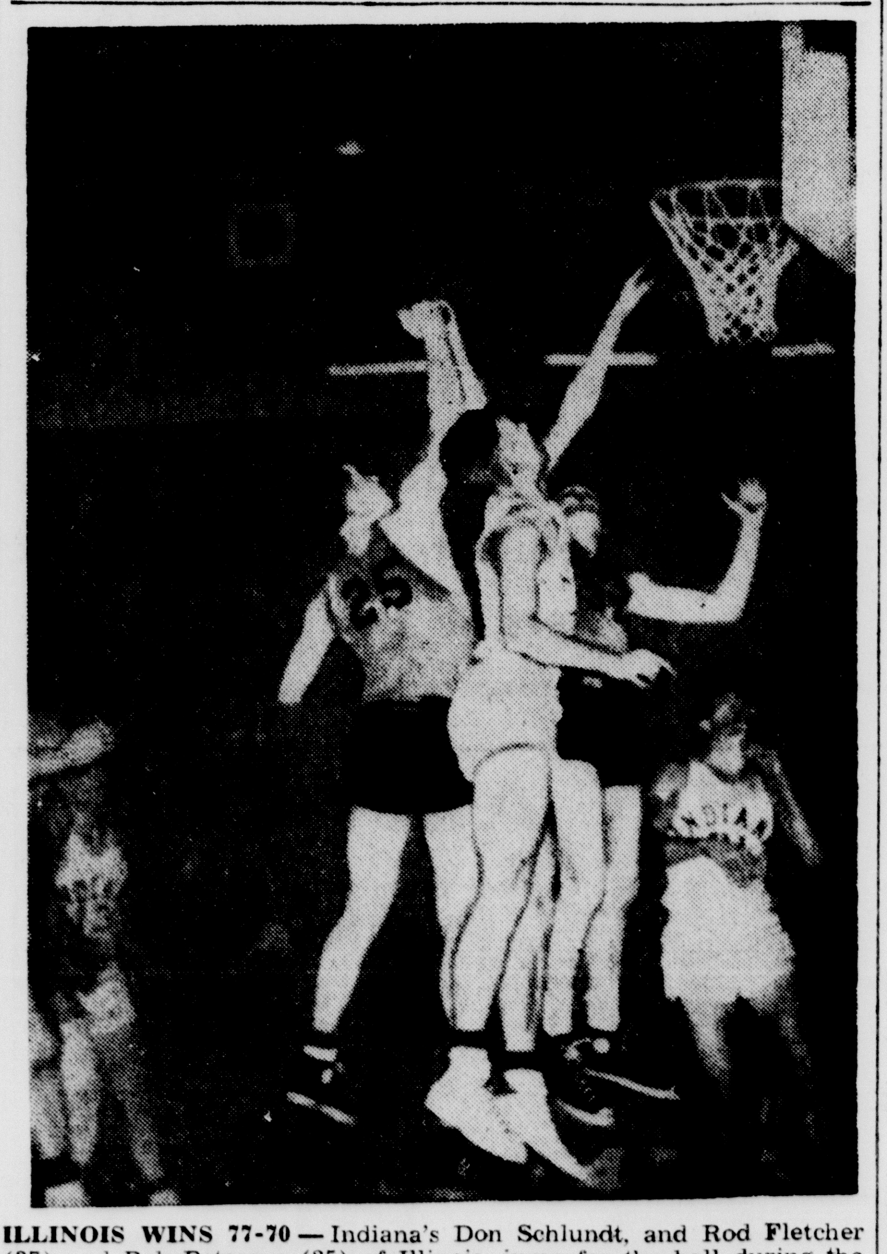
Andrea Lawrence

The flying housewife was clocked in 1:03.4 — fastest of the day—for her second trip down the difficult 508-yard Rodkleiva course which drops 196 yards from its summit and winds through 48 sharply angled control gates.

Her time for the two runs was 2:10.6. She was clocked in 1:07.2 for her first trip, 1.2 seconds behind the pace-setting Ossi Reichert of Germany.

Mrs. Lawrence won the first gold medal for Uncle Sam by capturing the giant slalom race on opening day.

There were many spills on the tricky Trail. Among those who lost their chances because of spills were Dagmar Rom, Austria's blonde movie queen and one of the top favorites, and America's Jannette Burr of Seattle and Katy Randolph of Hayden, Colo.



ILLINOIS WINS 77-70 — Indiana's Don Schlundt, and Rod Fletcher (37) and Bob Peterson (25) of Illinois, jump for the ball during the game at Bloomington, Ind. The game see-sawed until only three minutes remained. Then Captain Rod Fletcher gave the Illini a two point edge and Indiana never tied again. Illinois won 77-70. The Big Ten Ten Championship will probably be settled at Champaign Saturday when Illinois plays Iowa. (NEA Telephoto)

Miss Marchetti Senior Champion

SAGINAW, Mich.— (AP)— Barbara Marchetti of Detroit won all her races to capture the women's senior championship in the state outdoor ice skating championships completed here yesterday.

Half the events were run off Sunday but the remaining events had to be postponed until yesterday because of poor ice conditions.

Bob Snyder emerged the victor in the senior men's A division.

Howard Allison of Detroit tied the 13-year-old state meet record in the 440-yard dash by skating it in 36.9 seconds. The record was set by Arbid Friedlund in 1939. Terry Brown of Detroit also tied the record in 1950.

Free Throw After Final Gun Gives J. D. Pierce 64-63 Edge Over Rapid

MARQUETTE — (Special) — A free throw after the final gun provided the margin of victory here last night in one of the most thrilling games of this or any other season.

John D. Pierce edged Rapid River 64-63 when guard Bernie Fine stepped to the charity game and spread the lace with a gift toss after time had officially run out.

It was a heartbreaking loss for Coach Norman Slough's Rapid River Rockets who battled the favored Pierce quint on equal footing all the way. In fact it was the Rapid River quint which had the widest point spread in the tight game—eight in the third quarter.

Rapid threw a constant press at the Pierce cagers and it worked for the most part. The host quint enjoyed a height advantage which showed up under both buckets.

Spine-Tingling Ending

With 20 seconds remaining in the game the score was knotted at 63-63. The Rockets waived a free throw to take the ball out of bounds and set up a scoring play. The play worked but the layup rolled off the rim of the hoop and fell out. Pierce's Fine was fouled on the scramble for the rebound and the gun went off at the same time.

There was dead silence in the gym as Fine stepped up and zeroed in the gift toss which gave Pierce its 12th win in 15 starts. Pierce losses were suffered to National Mine (twice) and Mass.

The Rockets now own a record of 11 wins, five losses. Rapid River entertains Powers Friday night.

Pretty Girl Skaters Are U. S. Olympic Hope

OSLO, Norway—(AP)—Pretty girls in spangled skirts and slickly tailored ski suits should come to the straight days after getting off to a rescue of the point-starved United States Olympic team today.

Sonya Klopfer

The Americans have been shut out in the scoring column for three straight days after getting off to a flying start.

But with the figure skating gals and the slalom specialist taking over, things are apt to be different.

The special slalom for women, 465 meters almost straight down an icy mountainside at Roedkleiva, could easily have gold medal winner Andrea Mead Lawrence in the starring role.

Andy Won

Mrs. Lawrence, 19-year-old daredevil from Rutland, Vt., sailed home seconds ahead of the field in the giant slalom last Thursday for America's first victory in the 1952 games.

The giant slalom was nearly three times as long as the girls had to go down only once. Today they must race twice down the ice.

Backing up Andy will be Katty Rudolph of Hayden, Colo., who was fifth in the giant slalom; Imogene Opton of Conway, N. H., who should find the shorter run more to her liking, and Janette Burr of Seattle, Wash.

The U. S. has three girls in the running for points in the women's figure skating which ends tonight with the free skating. Americans usually excel in this department but unfortunately for them, it counts only 40 per cent toward the complicated points total.

Britain In Front

Jeannette Altwegg, Great Britain's specialist, built up a big lead in the school figures which count 60 per cent and she can practically win the title by just putting in appearance tonight.

Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., ranked second after Miss Altwegg going into the free style, and Sonya Klopfer, 17-year-old North American champion from Borokly, was third. Virginia Baxter, a tiny blonde from Detroit, stood seventh with a chance to move into the scoring column.

While the girls finish their event the men figure skaters rest for 24 hours before tackling their free skating. It will be America's Dick Button against the field. The Harvard student built up his usual lead in school figures yesterday and his free skating is even better.

Hockey Team Unbeaten

One event today that won't bring the Americans any points is the 50 kilometer (31.07 miles) cross-country ski race. All four Americans entered withdrew because they stood no chance to win. This one belongs to the Scandinavians and the likely winner is Miles Karlsson of Sweden who won it four years ago at St. Moritz.

The United States, Canada and Sweden hold the upper hand in the Olympic hockey tournament with four straight victories each. The U. S. won its first major test last night as it disposed previously unbeaten Switzerland, 8-2. Canada defeated a good Czech team, 4-1.

Going into today's events Norway held a huge lead in the unofficial point standings with 94. Austria was second with 51 and the United States third with 34½.

Indiana's Claim As Hotbed Of Cage Sport Challenged

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK — (AP)—This had to come, and the only wonder is that it didn't come sooner. Pennsylvania produces more top football stars than any state in the Union, Texas incubates the greatest golfers and California spawns the tennis immortals. But which state is the basketball capital?

For a great many years we have had the impression that Indiana held valid claim to that distinction. For some reason, we were told, the Hoosier youth started playing the game younger, played it better and were cheered on by a more frenzied set of basketball nuts than those of any other section of the nation.

An old friend, a successful coach, once told us of, how, just out of a freshwater college, he had accepted a bid to coach the high school team of an Indiana village. When he dropped off the train he discovered to his dismay that it wasn't much better than a crossroads.

"But, pal, when I started in trying to coach those kids I discovered they knew more about basketball than I did," he would recall. "It was an embarrassing situation. And the first night we drove off across the fields to play a game, there, right smack in the middle of nowhere, was the biggest doggone basketball arena I had ever seen. Cars and buggies and wagons were parked for a half-mile around and they had closed the doors long before we got there."

Having thus been fed on the wonders of Indiana basketball, it was with a certain sense of shock that we opened a recent copy of the New York Daily News to read in Jimmy Powers' column that the cream of the nation's cagers are born right here within dribbling distance.

Calls It Fable

"Indiana is supposed to be the hotbed of basketball," Powers scoffed. "It has long sported the reputation of being the chief spawning ground of talent for the game. Like many sports fables, this is accepted without any analysis or investigation. Consult any record book and you will find that the Brownsville-East New York section has produced more basketball All-Americas than the whole state of Indiana."

Powers then proceeded to reel off a list of names to daze the mind—Boykoff, Gotkin, Tannenbaum, Garfinkel, Schectman, Budko, Zawoluk, Zaslofsky, Bender, and numerous others. He wondered if any 20 Indiana high schools had produced as many authentic stars as one in New York City, Thomas Jefferson.

The thought occurred at the time that Indiana almost certainly wouldn't take talk like that sitting down, and sure enough it didn't. Bob Stranahan of the Indiapapolis Star comes snarling back with an entire column designed to prove that a "big city fellow by the name of Powers" should be tested for the feebles.

In white heat, Stranahan responds with a list longer than Powers'—and Indiana boys who have left their imprint indelibly upon the cage world. He is equally boiled at Jimmy for having spelled James Whitcomb Riley's name "Reilly."

"Maybe your New York readers will swallow it," he says, "but Hoosiers like Riley spelled Riley and their basketball played Indiana style."

Stranahan points out that last year's Associated Press All-America teams contained three Indianans—Sam Ranzino of N. C. State, Clyde Lovellette of Kansas and Bill Garrett of Indiana U. "That's three out of 15," he comments, "and how many did New York have? I can't find anyone except Bob Zawoluk of St. John's."

Leaving Powers and Stranahan to duel it out for the time being, is there any other state in position to stake a claim? Kentucky maybe, or Illinois? In hopes of finding a clue, we looked up last season's All-Star team of the National Professional Association, the game's big apple. The five picks were natives respectively of Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Kentucky. Indiana placed one on the second team, New York two.

The deep South, the Southwest and the far West have produced far more than their share of big league baseball greats, but for some reason not easily answered have come up only rarely with a basketball star of first magnitude.

Runaway Auto Chases Boy, 12, In Brooklyn

NEW YORK— (AP) —Thanks to quick thinking and a speedy pair of legs, 12-year-old Kenneth Sherman eluded a runaway automobile that chased him all over his Brooklyn neighborhood.

It started with a routine intersection collision of an auto and a bus. Kenneth and a group of youngsters were playing touchfootball when the crash came nearby. All scattered.

The others took off eastward. Kenneth ran westward — toward home. The now-decontrolled auto jumped the curb, too after Kenneth.

The surprised lad took note, quickly reversed his field and headed south. The car struck a cellar grating, determinedly started across the street in hot pursuit—all the while with the upset driver struggling unsuccessfully with the wheel.

Panic-stricken Kenneth tried hiding. The runaway next bounced off a parked car and rammed a pole. Kenneth, hiding behind the same pole, was only slightly injured.

Mothballs are said to keep tools from rusting. The mothballs absorb the moisture that produces the oxidation

Rancher, Once Poor, Leaves $200,000 For Treatment Of Needy

STOCKTON, Calif.—(AP)—"I have been poor," said the last will of retired rancher Aladino Belluomini. "I know and understand the difficulties that beset people of limited means when confronted by illness, disease or injury. . . ."

So Belluomini, who died a week ago at the age of 61, left his estate of more than $200,000 to San Joaquin county to provide the latest scientific treatment in medicines for the poor.

Belluomini came from Italy in 1913 and began work as a day laborer. He had been married only 10 months when his young wife died in childbirth.

Friends said he always felt that had he been able to afford adequate medical care his wife's life might have been saved.

His will was filed yesterday.

Manufacturing Cities Have Labor Surplus

WASHINGTON —(AP) — Three Michigan cities—Detroit, Grand Rapids and Flint—now are officially recognized as "labor surplus" areas.

The three were certified as such by the Labor Department yesterday, putting them in line for special treatment on government contracts.

This means that contracts may be negotiated for them instead of being let out on bids.

Customary practice is to give contracts to lowest bidders. However, where unemployment is severe because of curtailed civilian production the contracts may be negotiated.

The Detroit, Flint and Grand Rapids areas were certified as surplus labor areas along with a dozen or more other areas in the country.
